Course Objectives
This course investigates the development of the blues from its beginnings to the present day. Students will learn to understand the history of the blues in terms of changes in musical techniques and social values and to recognize music as a site of celebration and struggle over relationships and ideals. Students will increase their ability to hear differences among performances and styles and to interpret the meanings of such differences. They will gain greater knowledge of U.S. History as it affects and is affected by musical activities and learn to appreciate the stakes and motives behind the controversies and debates that have always surrounded the blues and related forms of American popular music.

Course Summary
The blues made audible the struggles and resilience of African Americans and the music's sonic history is inseparable from broader historical and social forces such as the legacies of the slave trade, the dehumanizing conditions of the Jim Crow South, and the urbanization of a largely rural black population. The blues took on additional meanings as it “re-emerged” in the 1930s and 40s as part of a “leftist” trend in liberal politics, in the 1950s as the foundation for rock-and-roll, and again during the socially conscious counterculture of the 1960s. Since that time the blues has continued to infuse American and global popular music styles. We will use a wide variety of readings, sound recordings, and videos to help us trace the development of the blues from its African antecedents and its roots in African American spirituals, work songs and hollers, through its initial flowering in the Mississippi Delta and to its eventual emergence as a form of mass culture. Along the way we will explore how the blues has influenced many forms of American music including jazz, country, rhythm and blues, rock, and rap. But perhaps most importantly, this course will attempt to situate the blues within a broader investigation of the politics of race, class, and gender, and of the institutional arrangements that have shaped and continue to shape contemporary music making.

Course Reading and Listening

- All required reading and listening for the course is available online at:
  - http://reserves.ucsd.edu [search under my last name]
- For the music files follow the link labeled “DAR (Digital Audio Reserves)”
  - The course password is “theblues” [all lowercase, no spaces]
  - If you have difficulties accessing the listening please read the DAR FAQs & Tips
    - Libraries Home -> Library Locations -> Arts Library -> Music -> Services -> DAR FAQs & Tips
- Please note: Access to the Reserves and DAR websites is restricted to UCSD IP addresses.
  - To access the reserves materials off campus you must use UCSD’s “proxy server.”
    - http://www-no.ucsd.edu/documentation/squid/ for more info

Course Requirements
The course is divided into two non-cumulative units of equal weighting. For each unit, students will be assigned a take-home project and will take an in-class exam. Additionally, students are required to attend one blues or blues-related concert outside of class during each unit of the course. Lastly, unannounced pop quizzes will be given during lecture times.

- UNIT I = 50% [exam 25%, project 15%, concert report 5%, pop quizzes 5%]
- UNIT II = 50% [exam 25%, project 15%, concert report 5%, pop quizzes 5%]
Exams are multiple choice (scantron) and present a variety of questions (including a significant listening portion) covering lecture materials and reading and listening assignments. There are no make-ups for missed exams except under the most unusual circumstances. To request a make-up, a legitimate excuse must be submitted before the exam, or no later than one class period after the exam and must be accompanied by written evidence (e.g., a doctor’s note). Personal conflicts or scheduling difficulties will not be considered as legitimate excuses. Projects will generally involve short essay questions (totaling about 4-5 pages of writing) intended to provoke a critical engagement with one or more topics presented during each unit. Students are required to reference the assigned readings and listening and to follow certain style guidelines (to be discussed in class). The project assignment will be given to the class at least one week prior to its due date and may also include creative options for students to work as individuals or in groups. Concert Reports must be no more than one typewritten page and should involve both description of and critical reflection on the event attended. Proof of attendance (a ticket stub, concert flyer signed by the artist or venue, sign in sheet at a UCSD event, etc.) must accompany the written report. Concerts of interest, both on and off campus, will be mentioned from time to time in class [http://blusd.org is a particularly useful resource]. Please feel free to share with the class any information you may have on events that are relevant to the course.

Attendance and Classroom Policy

Students are expected to be at every class session. Video, audio, lecture, and discussion materials vital to one’s success in this course will only be presented during class times. In the case of an unavoidable absence, students are encouraged to visit with a TA (or with the professor) during an office hour in order to discuss what they missed and to obtain important lecture notes. Beyond this, lecture notes will not be made available. Unannounced pop quizzes will be given during lecture times and will count toward the student’s final grade.
